Jewish Museum

The Jewish Museum London

The Jewish Museum has recently closed for a major expansion that will triple the space at the flagship Camden Town premises and integrate the collections, displays and activities of its two previous two sites under one roof. The new Museum, scheduled to reopen in Spring 2009, will have enlarged exhibition galleries, new education facilities and hands-on displays for children and families. It will create a vibrant and welcoming venue with a dynamic range of programming to appeal to all. As the Museum embarks on its building work, it continues to offer education workshops, outreach, touring exhibitions and exciting events for all the family. For further details about the Development Project or the events programme, please visit the Museum's website at www.jewishmuseum.org.uk

The Museum has a packed diary of events including talks, film showings, outings and family events. The Museum also has a collection of exhibitions which can be hired out for HMD events. Please contact the museum for more information.

HMD Exhibitions

HMDT now has two art exhibitions available for free loan.

Our watercolour collection is a series of 11 paintings depicting life during the Holocaust and survivors relating their experiences today. The artist is Paul Winner whose website can be visited at www.paulwinnerart.co.uk

The photographic exhibition is entitled "Absence and Loss" and examines architectural memorials to victims of the Holocaust. Marion Davies's website with details of the exhibition can be visited at www.mariondavies.co.uk A book of the collection can be purchased through Marion.

While there is no hire cost for either exhibition we would ask for the cost of transport to and from our offices to be paid - our estimate is that this will be no more than £200 each way per exhibition, although this is dependent on delivery distance from London. We would be happy should you wish to collect the exhibition from our office to save delivery cost.

For more details please call 0845 838 1883.
